

ODS!
RGAINS!

RUSH!

ILL BE

Week:

roderies, Laces,
Kind, Linens,
arts, Hosiery
s and Gent's

y the Wind Blows

ORGANDIES

ed

ant styles and pretty es. They go for s, so these beautif

READS.

Monday.

FLAGS!

, too, was bound to et things float. So body that wants to inches all the way
g.

underwest.

cts Try.

year. Competition prices for the sole of August bar-out before going to

MER!

at 4½c, worth in

LS TO MOURN

Linen ever owned

de. Come to see

ce at our Bargain

will be the regret

e this week.

& CO.,

EEFMAN,

o Peachtree Street

ned on Wheat street
ent to Marietta st.,
$400 cash, balance

50 to 20 foot street, set to 20 foot st.

0 per annum, owners

laces on Capitol av., &

nt to everything, being again to those looking close in one block of

to sell to buy furni

piece of improved

for 6 per cent net

$4,000.

Blakely av., $2,000.

st., 604½, $1,000.

Gate City street,

nd little lot.

allment.

on Clark, $3,000.

$1,250.

tree st., one of the city, can be sold on 92 each.

4, $25.

on Marietta st.

Teachers Room.

THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION.

VOL. XXII.

ATLANTA, GA., MONDAY MORNING, AUGUST 4, 1890.

PRICE FIVE CENTS.

THE DOLLAR COTTAGE WHICH MRS. HARRISON GLEEFULLY ACCEPTED.

THE GLEN ECHO LAND GRAB.

"Prince" Russell in the Role of a Lottery Expert, Driving Good Trades While His Father Plays Over-righteous.

WASHINGTON, August 2.—[Special.]—Poor little Ben Harrison gets into lots of trouble on account of his indiscretions.

Somehow all the members of his family have an eye to making money out of the president's position, and they lose no opportunity to go into any deal by which they can earn a few dollars.

In the first place, if President Harrison or any member of his family, have yet refused a gift of any description, no one has heard of it.

Mrs. Harrison accepted the Cape May cottage which she knew was simply given her by a land company to advertise their Cape May Point building lots. Yet she displayed no hesitancy in gobbling up the offer as soon as it was made. This embarrassed little Ben considerably, and he tried to straighten it out by offering to pay the donors for the cottage and having it given to the newspapers that he did pay $10,000 for it after giving the house a mouth's trial and concluding that he was satisfied with it. Still the records at Cape May show that Mrs. Harrison paid $1 for the property.

Mrs. Harrison's next deal was to purchase over $20,000 worth of lots at "Glen Echo," one of Washington's suburbs, for the large sum of $1. The records show that $1 was the sum paid; yet it was a straight gift, and Mrs. Harrison gobbled it up as earnestly as she accepted the Cape May cottage. Again a howl was raised, but the president has as yet given out no excuse.

This time the president's embarrassment is caused by his son, "Prince Russell."

The other day the president wrote a very decided message against lotteries, in which he called upon congress to enact a law that would exclude these companies from doing business through the mail. Yet in the same day this message to congress, Russell Harrison wrote for his paper, the Helema (Mont.) Journal, a long description of the fairness of the drawing of the Lottery Juarez and described in glowing terms the amount of money which people have won from the investment of $1. Besides this a large advertisement of the company appeared in the same issue of the paper.

Colonel Mosby, of San Francisco, an employee of this lottery company, says Russell Harrison was paid $200 for this, that a short time ago when the Glen Echo "Prize" was advertised over the wires, and he directed this advertisement which was given him by the officers of the company, and with it they also gave him a $1,000 advertisement for "The Judge" of which he is either one of the proprietors or an employee.

This is the sort of tale that will naturally be told in the face of his message in which he says "legislation should be promptly enacted to enable this postoffice department to purge the mails of all letters and newspapers" relating to the lottery business. Indeed, the family of the occupant of the white house are getting into little trouble. They are bringing down upon him the denunciations of the entire country.

What will be the next white house scandal?

A gentleman who is an intimate friend of Senator Gorman, who was nominated to the Senate by the ballot box, has told us yesterday that Senator Gorman did not conduct the last national campaign on account of the large amount of money he would have had to spend out of his own pocket. He feared the amount would have been so great that he would have been compelled to borrow. Another who was a member of the Senate could not afford to have his pocket lined with the principal reason was on account of the expense.

"Do you know," said he, "that Colonel Brice actually spent $250,000 out of his own pocket for Mr. Cleveland in the last campaign. The amount he spent out of his pocket was so large that he could not have been compelled to borrow for all debts, had he paid them. Brice is one of the few men in the party who could have afforded to have his pocket lined with the principal reason was on account of the expense."

Colonel Buck Kilgore, of Texas, is having a hard fight in his district for re-nomination. Ex-Governor Dick Hubbard, the spread-eagle orator of the Lone Star state, is after the "objection" state. It is going to be a close fight, but Colonel Kilgore's constituents recognize his merit, and he is one of the few members of the house who will not go into a log-rolling scheme. If a measure is meritorious he will vote for it. If not, nothing will prevent his fighting it stubbornly. He has exposed many steals and has saved the government enough money to pay his salary for a long time for many years to come. Indeed, the democratic leaders could not afford to lose him from the house. He has the courage of his convictions, and as these men are few these days it is not wise to turn one down when he holds a seat in the house where he can do much.

Colonel Kilgore is a Georgian. He was born and raised in Coweta county, and although he has been in Texas many years, he is yet good enough to be claimed as a Georgian.

And, by the way, speaking of Georgians, three of the present Texas delegation in the house are Georgians. They are Kilgore, Culbertson and Martin.

"Do you know the state of Georgia did itself an irreparable injury in defeating Judson Clements," said a Texas member last evening. "Clemens was probably the best equipped member on the Georgia delegation for an opposition which was just, she secured it. Now Georgia can hardly get another man on that committee within the next four years. Members of the committee are much sought after and it is almost impossible for a member to get on it. Of course, members from other states will not take the interest in Georgia that a Georgian would, and I fear your state will suffer."

Tom Grimes is another member of the Georgia delegation who has hundreds of friends in the state. He has been remarkably successful with his measures pending before congress. Indeed, Mr. Grimes has done good work for his district in connection with his work for the national cause. He is one of the few members of the committee looked upon with apprehension. That men may be found lawless enough to commit these crimes is to be deplored, but when he has been remarkably successful with his measures pending before congress. Indeed, Mr. Grimes has done good work for his district in connection with his work for the national cause. He is one of the few members of the committee looked upon with apprehension. That men may be found lawless enough to commit these crimes is to be deplored, but when he has been remarkably successful with his measures pending before congress. Indeed, Mr. Grimes has done good work for his district in connection with his work for the national cause. He is one of the few members of the committee looked upon with apprehension. That men may be found lawless enough to commit these crimes is to be deplored, but when he has been remarkably successful with his measures pending before congress. Indeed, Mr. Grimes has done good work for his district in connection with his work for the national cause. He is one of the few members of the committee looked upon with apprehension. That men may be found lawless enough to commit these crimes is to be deplored, but when he has been remarkably successful with his measures pending before congress. Indeed, Mr. Grimes has done good work for his district in connection with his work for the national cause. He is one of the few members of the committee looked upon with apprehension. That men may be found lawless enough to commit these crimes is to be deplored, but when he has been remarkably successful with his measures pending before congress. Indeed, Mr. Grimes has done good work for his district in connection with his work for the national cause. He is one of the few members of the committee looked upon with apprehension. That men may be found lawless enough to commit these crimes is to be deplored, but when he has been remarkably successful with his measures pending before congress. Indeed, Mr. Grimes has done good work for his district in connection with his work for the national cause. He is one of the few members of the committee looked upon with apprehension. That men may be found lawless enough to commit these crimes is to be deplored, but when he has been remarkably successful with his measures pending before congress. Indeed, Mr. Grimes has done good work for his district in connection with his work for the national cause. He is one of the few members of the committee looked upon with apprehension. That men may be found lawless enough to commit these crimes is to be deplored, but when he has been remarkably successful with his measures pending before congress. Indeed, Mr. Grimes has done good work for his district in connection with his work for the national cause. He is one of the few members of the committee looked upon with apprehension. That men may be found lawless enough to commit these crimes is to be deplored, but when he has been remarkably successful with his measures pending before congress. Indeed, Mr. Grimes has done good work for his district in connection with his work for the national cause. He is one of the few members of the committee looked upon with apprehension. That men may be found lawless enough to commit these crimes is to be deplored, but when he has been remarkably successful with his measures pending before congress. Indeed, Mr. Grimes has done good work for his district in connection with his work for the national cause. He is one of the few members of the committee looked upon with apprehension. That men may be found lawless enough to commit these crimes is to be deplored, but when he has been remarkably successful with his measures pending before congress. Indeed, Mr. Grimes has done good work for his district in connection with his work for the national cause. He is one of the few members of the committee looked upon with apprehension. That men may be found lawless enough to commit these crimes is to be deplored, but when he has been remarkably successful with his measures pending before congress. Indeed, Mr. Grimes has done good work for his district in connection with his work for the national cause. He is one of the few members of the committee looked upon with apprehension. That men may be found lawless enough to commit these crimes is to be deplored, but when he has been remarkably successful with his measures pending before congress. Indeed, Mr. Grimes has done good work for his district in connection with his work for the national cause. He is one of the few members of the committee looked upon with apprehension. That men may be found lawless enough to commit these crimes is to be deplored, but when he has been remarkably successful with his measures pending before congress. Indeed, Mr. Grimes has done good work for his district in connection with his work for the national cause. He is one of the few members of the committee looked upon with apprehension. That men may be found lawless enough to commit these crimes is to be deplored, but when he has been remarkably successful with his measures pending before congress. Indeed, Mr. Grimes has done good work for his district in connection with his work for the national cause. He is one of the few members of the committee looked upon with apprehension. That men may be found lawless enough to commit these crimes is to be deplored, but when he has been remarkably successful with his measures pending before congress. Indeed, Mr. Grimes has done good work for his district in connection with his work for the national cause. He is one of the few members of the committee looked upon with apprehension. That men may be found lawless enough to commit these crimes is to be deplored, but when he has been remarkably successful with his measures pending before congress. Indeed, Mr. Grimes has done good work for his district in connection with his work for the national cause. He is one of the few members of the committee looked upon with apprehension. That men may be found lawless enough to commit these crimes is to be deplored, but when he has been remarkably successful with his measures pending before congress. Indeed, Mr. Grimes has done good work for his district in connection with his work for the national cause. He is one of the few members of the committee looked upon with apprehension. That men may be found lawless enough to commit these crimes is to be deplored, but when he has been remarkably successful with his measures pending before congress. Indeed, Mr. Grimes has done good work for his district in connection with his work for the national cause. He is one of the few members of the committee looked upon with apprehension. That men may be found lawless enough to commit these crimes is to be deplored, but when he has been remarkably successful with his measures pending before congress. Indeed, Mr. Grimes has done good work for his district in connection with his work for the national cause. He is one of the few members of the committee looked upon with apprehension. That men may be found lawless enough to commit these crimes is to be deplored, but when he has been remarkably successful with his measures pending before congress. Indeed, Mr. Grimes has done good work for his district in connection with his work for the national cause. He is one of the few members of the committee looked upon with apprehension. That men may be found lawless enough to commit these crimes is to be deplored, but when he has been remarkably successful with his measures pending before congress. Indeed, Mr. Grimes has done good work for his district in connection with his work for the national cause. He is one of the few members of the committee looked upon with apprehension. That men may be found lawless enough to commit these crimes is to be deplored, but when he has been remarkably successful with his measures pending before congress. Indeed, Mr. Grimes has done good work for his district in connection with his work for the national cause. He is one of the few members of the committee looked upon with apprehension. That men may be found lawless enough to commit these crimes is to be deplored, but when he has been remarkably successful with his measures pending before congress. Indeed, Mr. Grimes has done good work for his district in connection with his work for the national cause. He is one of the few members of the committee looked upon with apprehension. That men may be found lawless enough to commit these crimes is to be deplored, but when he has been remarkably successful with his measures pending before congress. Indeed, Mr. Grimes has done good work for his district in connection with his work for the national cause. He is one of the few members of the committee looked upon with apprehension. That men may be found lawless enough to commit these crimes is to be deplored, but when he has been remarkably successful with his measures pending before congress. Indeed, Mr. Grimes has done good work for his district in connection with his work for the national cause. He is one of the few members of the committee looked upon with apprehension. That men may be found lawless enough to commit these crimes is to be deplored, but when he has been remarkably successful with his measures pending before congress. Indeed, Mr. Grimes has done good work for his district in connection with his work for the national cause. He is one of the few members of the committee looked upon with apprehension. That men may be found lawless enough to commit these crimes is to be deplored, but when he has been remarkably successful with his measures pending before congress. Indeed, Mr. Grimes has done good work for his district in connection with his work for the national cause. He is one of the few members of the committee looked upon with apprehension. That men may be found lawless enough to commit these crimes is to be deplored, but when he has been remarkably successful with his measures pending before congress. Indeed, Mr. Grimes has done good work for his district in connection with his work for the national cause. He is one of the few members of the committee looked upon with apprehension. That men may be found lawless enough to commit these crimes is to be deplored, but when he has been remarkably successful with his measures pending before congress. Indeed, Mr. Grimes has done good work for his district in connection with his work for the national cause. He is one of the few members of the committee looked upon with apprehension. That men may be found lawless enough to commit these crimes is to be deplored, but when he has been remarkably successful with his measures pending before congress. Indeed, Mr. Grimes has done good work for his district in connection with his work for the national cause. He is one of the few members of the committee looked upon with apprehension. That men may be found lawless enough to commit these crimes is to be deplored, but when he has been remarkably successful with his measures pending before congress. Indeed, Mr. Grimes has done good work for his district in connection with his work for the national cause. He is one of the few members of the committee looked upon with apprehension. That men may be found lawless enough to commit these crimes is to be deplored, but when he has been remarkably successful with his measures pending before congress. Indeed, Mr. Grimes has done good work for his district in connection with his work for the national cause. He is one of the few members of the committee looked upon with apprehension. That men may be found lawless enough to commit these crimes is to be deplored, but when he has been remarkably successful with his measures pending before congress. Indeed, Mr. Grimes has done good work for his district in connection with his work for the national cause. He is one of the few members of the committee looked upon with apprehension. That men may be found lawless enough to commit these crimes is to be deplored, but when he has been remarkably successful with his measures pending before congress. Indeed, Mr. Grimes has done good work for his district in connection with his work for the national cause. He is one of the few members of the committee looked upon with apprehension. That men may be found lawless enough to commit these crimes is to be deplored, but when he has been remarkably successful with his measures pending before congress. Indeed, Mr. Grimes has done good work for his district in connection with his work for the national cause. He is one of the few members of the committee looked upon with apprehension. That men may be found lawless enough to commit these crimes is to be deplored, but when he has been remarkably successful with his measures pending before congress. Indeed, Mr. Grimes has done good work for his district in connection with his work for the national cause. He is one of the few members of the committee looked upon with apprehension. That men may be found lawless enough to commit these crimes is to be deplored, but when he has been remarkably successful with his measures pending before congress. Indeed, Mr. Grimes has done good work for his district in connection with his work for the national cause. He is one of the few members of the committee looked upon with apprehension. That men may be found lawless enough to commit these crimes is to be deplored, but when he has been remarkably successful with his measures pending before congress. Indeed, Mr. Grimes has done good work for his district in connection with his work for the national cause. He is one of the few members of the committee looked upon with apprehension. That men may be found lawless enough to commit these crimes is to be deplored, but when he has been remarkably successful with his measures pending before congress. Indeed, Mr. Grimes has done good work for his district in connection with his work for the national cause. He is one of the few members of the committee looked upon with apprehension. That men may be found lawless enough to commit these crimes is to be deplored, but when he has been remarkably successful with his measures pending before congress. Indeed, Mr. Grimes has done good work for his district in connection with his work for the national cause. He is one of the few members of the committee looked upon with apprehension. That men may be found lawless enough to commit these crimes is to be deplored, but when he has been remarkably successful with his measures pending before congress. Indeed, Mr. Grimes has done good work for his district in connection with his work for the national cause. He is one of the few members of the committee looked upon with apprehension. That men may be found lawless enough to commit these crimes is to be deplored, but when he has been remarkably successful with his measures pending before congress. Indeed, Mr. Grimes has done good work for his district in connection with his work for the national cause. He is one of the few members of the committee looked upon with apprehension. That men may be found lawless enough to commit these crimes is to be deplored, but when he has been remarkably successful with his measures pending before congress. Indeed, Mr. Grimes has done good work for his district in connection with his work for the national cause. He is one of the few members of the committee looked upon with apprehension. That men may be found lawless enough to commit these crimes is to be deplored, but when he has been remarkably successful with his measures pending before congress. Indeed, Mr. Grimes has done good work for his district in connection with his work for the national cause. He is one of the few members of the committee looked upon with apprehension. That men may be found lawless enough to commit these crimes is to be deplored, but when he has been remarkably successful with his measures pending before congress. Indeed, Mr. Grimes has done good work for his district in connection with his work for the national cause. He is one of the few members of the committee looked upon with apprehension. That men may be found lawless enough to commit these crimes is to be deplored, but when he has been remarkably successful with his measures pending before congress. Indeed, Mr. Grimes has done good work for his district in connection with his work for the national cause. He is one of the few members of the committee looked upon with apprehension. That men may be found lawless enough to commit these crimes is to be deplored, but when he has been remarkably successful with his measures pending before congress. Indeed, Mr. Grimes has done good work for his district in connection with his work for the national cause. He is one of the few members of the committee looked upon with apprehension. That men may be found lawless enough to commit these crimes is to be deplored, but when he has been remarkably successful with his measures pending before congress. Indeed, Mr. Grimes has done good work for his district in connection with his work for the national cause. He is one of the few members of the committee looked upon with apprehension. That men may

ONE WOMAN'S WOE.

THE PATHETIC STORY OF MRS. LILLIAN M. GOULD.

She Tells of Her Marriage, Her Miserable Life at the Hands of Her Husband's Relatives, and of the Tragedy.

MURPHY, N. C., August 2.—[Special.]—THE CONSTITUTION, in which was printed the English story of the life and career of Mrs. Lillian M. Gould, whose toy dagger, playfully used, had put an end to her husband's life, was eagerly read here. Taken in connection with the stories previously told here by that lady, it revealed a remarkable history, such as even novelist had never dreamt of before.

Sitting in an easy chair, with a cigarette between her ruby lips, Mrs. Gould read THE CONSTITUTION's article from beginning to end, and would occasionally pause to give vent to such expressions as "ridiculous!" "absurd!" etc.

"Is that article the truth, Mrs. Gould?" she was asked.

"It contains some statements," she said, "that are not far from the truth, but it would, indeed, be a hard undertaking to sift them out. The whole article is but the fabrication of an imaginative and fertile brain, and shows the utter irresponsibility of some people in England."

She puffed her fragrant cigarette a while longer, and continuing, said:

"I wish you would correct that absurd story. Why should I be made out such a fiend, when those that know me can testify that I am the most quiet woman in the world?"

She glanced at THE CONSTITUTION, which was laying in her lap, and her eyes fell upon the statement which claimed they had a child.

"There is not a semblance of truth in that," putting her finger on the paragraph. "The greatest desire of my life was that we should have a child, but this one pleasure was denied me."

"What do you intend doing, Mrs. Gould, if you leave here?" THE CONSTITUTION asked.

"It has been sixteen years since I appeared on the stage, but I suppose I shall follow my old profession. But I do not like the idea of leaving here, although I have been advised to do so. I shall not go very far, however, and if the authorities want me they can get me."

Here she seemed to be meditating, while a cloud of smoke ascended to the ceiling. With tears welling in her eyes she mournfully and wistfully said:

"Do you know I like the idea of being near the old church yard?"

"I have been preparing a story for publication in the London Times," she resumed, "but if THE CONSTITUTION will print it, I know it will serve my purpose much better."

The proposition of the lady was at once accepted, and the story which follows, addressed to the London Times, is word for word from her manuscript:

Mrs. Gould's Story.

To the Editor of the Times, London, England: How do I write to you—great man as you are; but, I am Lillian M. Gould, the supposed murderer of her husband.

In writing to you I feel and know that I am writing to the whole of England. They tell me that everybody nearly in England is talking about what they term the "dead." I committed, which they lately use.

Dream not for an instant that I am seeking to exonerate myself from blame, but try to listen to the last words I ever intended to write.

To begin, I never for an instant meant to tell my husband's life; I meant to frighten him and put him in the hands of the law. He had threatened to leave me destitute here, after years of indescribable sacrifices, after years of adversity, "born in proud silence, excepting when I couldn't help myself."

The FIRST MEETING.

When I first met my husband on board the "Barbara," going to Calcutta, I slumped him. I had heard him loudly declaiming in the saloon as I was going to the deck, and I went to the stewardess. In a petulant manner, "Who is that? What a dreadful rumpus the man is making," speaking in an authoritative voice, abusing the ship and its belongings in such stentorian tones that I thought he must be avoided. This was in July, 1874. A voice whispered to me inwardly (ah! how well I remember it!) avoid that man. One day he was introduced to me—we were standing on deck. In a freezing tone I said, "Have you a cold?" for his voice sounded hoarse, and I thought he had had it. I had heard it before, however, I found he was extremely cold, which, I believe, he was. They crept up to me, they congratulated me, I told them I was ill, and I found I was to become Mrs. C. Nitson, Gould. When I heard he had a quantity of unmarried sisters, a mother, etc., I became gloomy. I even said, "I don't care if I never get married again; I would much rather walk up to Calcutta where I promise you to write." But the fearful expressions which this elicited from my husband were so indescribable that I was compelled to desist at such for a time. I was not ill, but I had a fever, and day by day he attended me with the most hideous devotion.

The ship landed at Galle, where I got out, feeling more than half dead, and clung to throw up the whole thing—more so than ever when I found he had to bore me from me already.

Alone one evening in hotel at Galle, I heard again a voice, which I thought seemed familiar, raised in a foreign language, addressing one of the "sons of England." The voice drew nearer to me, I stood upright and marveled and incredulous. Presently Mr. Gould reached where I stood. With profound gravity I said: "Was that you?" Instantly he loaded me with a load of accusations, and I did not know what awful people the Singhalese are, and that they must be treated like brutes of the field—especially a woman, who would be mightier than the ladies if he liked, we were engaged, which, however, I found he had already done. They crept up to me, they congratulated me, I told them I was ill, and I found I was to become Mrs. C. Nitson, Gould.

When I heard he had a quantity of unmarried sisters, a mother, etc., I became gloomy. I even said, "I don't care if I never get married again; I would much rather walk up to Calcutta where I promise you to write." But the fearful expressions which this elicited from my husband were so indescribable that I was compelled to desist at such for a time. I was not ill, but I had a fever, and day by day he attended me with the most hideous devotion.

The ship landed at Galle, where I got out, feeling more than half dead, and clung to throw up the whole thing—more so than ever when I found he had to bore me from me already.

Alone one evening in hotel at Galle, I heard again a voice, which I thought seemed familiar, raised in a foreign language, addressing one of the "sons of England." The voice drew nearer to me, I stood upright and marveled and incredulous. Presently Mr. Gould reached where I stood. With profound gravity I said: "Was that you?" Instantly he loaded me with a load of accusations, and I did not know what awful people the Singhalese are, and that they must be treated like brutes of the field—especially a woman, who would be mightier than the ladies if he liked, we were engaged, which, however, I found he had already done. They crept up to me, they congratulated me, I told them I was ill, and I found I was to become Mrs. C. Nitson, Gould.

When I heard he had a quantity of unmarried sisters, a mother, etc., I became gloomy. I even said, "I don't care if I never get married again; I would much rather walk up to Calcutta where I promise you to write." But the fearful expressions which this elicited from my husband were so indescribable that I was compelled to desist at such for a time. I was not ill, but I had a fever, and day by day he attended me with the most hideous devotion.

The ship landed at Galle, where I got out, feeling more than half dead, and clung to throw up the whole thing—more so than ever when I found he had to bore me from me already.

Alone one evening in hotel at Galle, I heard again a voice, which I thought seemed familiar, raised in a foreign language, addressing one of the "sons of England." The voice drew nearer to me, I stood upright and marveled and incredulous. Presently Mr. Gould reached where I stood. With profound gravity I said: "Was that you?" Instantly he loaded me with a load of accusations, and I did not know what awful people the Singhalese are, and that they must be treated like brutes of the field—especially a woman, who would be mightier than the ladies if he liked, we were engaged, which, however, I found he had already done. They crept up to me, they congratulated me, I told them I was ill, and I found I was to become Mrs. C. Nitson, Gould.

When I heard he had a quantity of unmarried sisters, a mother, etc., I became gloomy. I even said, "I don't care if I never get married again; I would much rather walk up to Calcutta where I promise you to write." But the fearful expressions which this elicited from my husband were so indescribable that I was compelled to desist at such for a time. I was not ill, but I had a fever, and day by day he attended me with the most hideous devotion.

The ship landed at Galle, where I got out, feeling more than half dead, and clung to throw up the whole thing—more so than ever when I found he had to bore me from me already.

Alone one evening in hotel at Galle, I heard again a voice, which I thought seemed familiar, raised in a foreign language, addressing one of the "sons of England." The voice drew nearer to me, I stood upright and marveled and incredulous. Presently Mr. Gould reached where I stood. With profound gravity I said: "Was that you?" Instantly he loaded me with a load of accusations, and I did not know what awful people the Singhalese are, and that they must be treated like brutes of the field—especially a woman, who would be mightier than the ladies if he liked, we were engaged, which, however, I found he had already done. They crept up to me, they congratulated me, I told them I was ill, and I found I was to become Mrs. C. Nitson, Gould.

When I heard he had a quantity of unmarried sisters, a mother, etc., I became gloomy. I even said, "I don't care if I never get married again; I would much rather walk up to Calcutta where I promise you to write." But the fearful expressions which this elicited from my husband were so indescribable that I was compelled to desist at such for a time. I was not ill, but I had a fever, and day by day he attended me with the most hideous devotion.

The ship landed at Galle, where I got out, feeling more than half dead, and clung to throw up the whole thing—more so than ever when I found he had to bore me from me already.

Alone one evening in hotel at Galle, I heard again a voice, which I thought seemed familiar, raised in a foreign language, addressing one of the "sons of England." The voice drew nearer to me, I stood upright and marveled and incredulous. Presently Mr. Gould reached where I stood. With profound gravity I said: "Was that you?" Instantly he loaded me with a load of accusations, and I did not know what awful people the Singhalese are, and that they must be treated like brutes of the field—especially a woman, who would be mightier than the ladies if he liked, we were engaged, which, however, I found he had already done. They crept up to me, they congratulated me, I told them I was ill, and I found I was to become Mrs. C. Nitson, Gould.

When I heard he had a quantity of unmarried sisters, a mother, etc., I became gloomy. I even said, "I don't care if I never get married again; I would much rather walk up to Calcutta where I promise you to write." But the fearful expressions which this elicited from my husband were so indescribable that I was compelled to desist at such for a time. I was not ill, but I had a fever, and day by day he attended me with the most hideous devotion.

The ship landed at Galle, where I got out, feeling more than half dead, and clung to throw up the whole thing—more so than ever when I found he had to bore me from me already.

Alone one evening in hotel at Galle, I heard again a voice, which I thought seemed familiar, raised in a foreign language, addressing one of the "sons of England." The voice drew nearer to me, I stood upright and marveled and incredulous. Presently Mr. Gould reached where I stood. With profound gravity I said: "Was that you?" Instantly he loaded me with a load of accusations, and I did not know what awful people the Singhalese are, and that they must be treated like brutes of the field—especially a woman, who would be mightier than the ladies if he liked, we were engaged, which, however, I found he had already done. They crept up to me, they congratulated me, I told them I was ill, and I found I was to become Mrs. C. Nitson, Gould.

When I heard he had a quantity of unmarried sisters, a mother, etc., I became gloomy. I even said, "I don't care if I never get married again; I would much rather walk up to Calcutta where I promise you to write." But the fearful expressions which this elicited from my husband were so indescribable that I was compelled to desist at such for a time. I was not ill, but I had a fever, and day by day he attended me with the most hideous devotion.

The ship landed at Galle, where I got out, feeling more than half dead, and clung to throw up the whole thing—more so than ever when I found he had to bore me from me already.

Alone one evening in hotel at Galle, I heard again a voice, which I thought seemed familiar, raised in a foreign language, addressing one of the "sons of England." The voice drew nearer to me, I stood upright and marveled and incredulous. Presently Mr. Gould reached where I stood. With profound gravity I said: "Was that you?" Instantly he loaded me with a load of accusations, and I did not know what awful people the Singhalese are, and that they must be treated like brutes of the field—especially a woman, who would be mightier than the ladies if he liked, we were engaged, which, however, I found he had already done. They crept up to me, they congratulated me, I told them I was ill, and I found I was to become Mrs. C. Nitson, Gould.

When I heard he had a quantity of unmarried sisters, a mother, etc., I became gloomy. I even said, "I don't care if I never get married again; I would much rather walk up to Calcutta where I promise you to write." But the fearful expressions which this elicited from my husband were so indescribable that I was compelled to desist at such for a time. I was not ill, but I had a fever, and day by day he attended me with the most hideous devotion.

The ship landed at Galle, where I got out, feeling more than half dead, and clung to throw up the whole thing—more so than ever when I found he had to bore me from me already.

Alone one evening in hotel at Galle, I heard again a voice, which I thought seemed familiar, raised in a foreign language, addressing one of the "sons of England." The voice drew nearer to me, I stood upright and marveled and incredulous. Presently Mr. Gould reached where I stood. With profound gravity I said: "Was that you?" Instantly he loaded me with a load of accusations, and I did not know what awful people the Singhalese are, and that they must be treated like brutes of the field—especially a woman, who would be mightier than the ladies if he liked, we were engaged, which, however, I found he had already done. They crept up to me, they congratulated me, I told them I was ill, and I found I was to become Mrs. C. Nitson, Gould.

When I heard he had a quantity of unmarried sisters, a mother, etc., I became gloomy. I even said, "I don't care if I never get married again; I would much rather walk up to Calcutta where I promise you to write." But the fearful expressions which this elicited from my husband were so indescribable that I was compelled to desist at such for a time. I was not ill, but I had a fever, and day by day he attended me with the most hideous devotion.

The ship landed at Galle, where I got out, feeling more than half dead, and clung to throw up the whole thing—more so than ever when I found he had to bore me from me already.

Alone one evening in hotel at Galle, I heard again a voice, which I thought seemed familiar, raised in a foreign language, addressing one of the "sons of England." The voice drew nearer to me, I stood upright and marveled and incredulous. Presently Mr. Gould reached where I stood. With profound gravity I said: "Was that you?" Instantly he loaded me with a load of accusations, and I did not know what awful people the Singhalese are, and that they must be treated like brutes of the field—especially a woman, who would be mightier than the ladies if he liked, we were engaged, which, however, I found he had already done. They crept up to me, they congratulated me, I told them I was ill, and I found I was to become Mrs. C. Nitson, Gould.

When I heard he had a quantity of unmarried sisters, a mother, etc., I became gloomy. I even said, "I don't care if I never get married again; I would much rather walk up to Calcutta where I promise you to write." But the fearful expressions which this elicited from my husband were so indescribable that I was compelled to desist at such for a time. I was not ill, but I had a fever, and day by day he attended me with the most hideous devotion.

The ship landed at Galle, where I got out, feeling more than half dead, and clung to throw up the whole thing—more so than ever when I found he had to bore me from me already.

Alone one evening in hotel at Galle, I heard again a voice, which I thought seemed familiar, raised in a foreign language, addressing one of the "sons of England." The voice drew nearer to me, I stood upright and marveled and incredulous. Presently Mr. Gould reached where I stood. With profound gravity I said: "Was that you?" Instantly he loaded me with a load of accusations, and I did not know what awful people the Singhalese are, and that they must be treated like brutes of the field—especially a woman, who would be mightier than the ladies if he liked, we were engaged, which, however, I found he had already done. They crept up to me, they congratulated me, I told them I was ill, and I found I was to become Mrs. C. Nitson, Gould.

When I heard he had a quantity of unmarried sisters, a mother, etc., I became gloomy. I even said, "I don't care if I never get married again; I would much rather walk up to Calcutta where I promise you to write." But the fearful expressions which this elicited from my husband were so indescribable that I was compelled to desist at such for a time. I was not ill, but I had a fever, and day by day he attended me with the most hideous devotion.

The ship landed at Galle, where I got out, feeling more than half dead, and clung to throw up the whole thing—more so than ever when I found he had to bore me from me already.

Alone one evening in hotel at Galle, I heard again a voice, which I thought seemed familiar, raised in a foreign language, addressing one of the "sons of England." The voice drew nearer to me, I stood upright and marveled and incredulous. Presently Mr. Gould reached where I stood. With profound gravity I said: "Was that you?" Instantly he loaded me with a load of accusations, and I did not know what awful people the Singhalese are, and that they must be treated like brutes of the field—especially a woman, who would be mightier than the ladies if he liked, we were engaged, which, however, I found he had already done. They crept up to me, they congratulated me, I told them I was ill, and I found I was to become Mrs. C. Nitson, Gould.

When I heard he had a quantity of unmarried sisters, a mother, etc., I became gloomy. I even said, "I don't care if I never get married again; I would much rather walk up to Calcutta where I promise you to write." But the fearful expressions which this elicited from my husband were so indescribable that I was compelled to desist at such for a time. I was not ill, but I had a fever, and day by day he attended me with the most hideous devotion.

The ship landed at Galle, where I got out, feeling more than half dead, and clung to throw up the whole thing—more so than ever when I found he had to bore me from me already.

Alone one evening in hotel at Galle, I heard again a voice, which I thought seemed familiar, raised in a foreign language, addressing one of the "sons of England." The voice drew nearer to me, I stood upright and marveled and incredulous. Presently Mr. Gould reached where I stood. With profound gravity I said: "Was that you?" Instantly he loaded me with a load of accusations, and I did not know what awful people the Singhalese are, and that they must be treated like brutes of the field—especially a woman, who would be mightier than the ladies if he liked, we were engaged, which, however, I found he had already done. They crept up to me, they congratulated me, I told them I was ill, and I found I was to become Mrs. C. Nitson, Gould.

When I heard he had a quantity of unmarried sisters, a mother, etc., I became gloomy. I even said, "I don't care if I never get married again; I would much rather walk up to Calcutta where I promise you to write." But the fearful expressions which this elicited from my husband were so indescribable that I was compelled to desist at such for a time. I was not ill, but I had a fever, and day by day he attended me with the most hideous devotion.

The ship landed at Galle, where I got out, feeling more than half dead, and clung to throw up the whole thing—more so than ever when I found he had to bore me from me already.

Alone one evening in hotel at Galle, I heard again a voice, which I thought seemed familiar, raised in a foreign language, addressing one of the "sons of England." The voice drew nearer to me, I stood upright and marveled and incredulous. Presently Mr. Gould reached where I stood. With profound gravity I said: "Was that you?" Instantly he loaded me with a load of accusations, and I did not know what awful people the Singhalese are, and that they must be treated like brutes of the field—especially a woman, who would be mightier than the ladies if he liked, we were engaged, which, however, I found he had already done. They crept up to me, they congratulated me, I told them I was ill, and I found I was to become Mrs. C. Nitson, Gould.

When I heard he had a quantity of unmarried sisters, a mother, etc., I became gloomy. I even said, "I don't care if I never get married again; I would much rather walk up to Calcutta where I promise you to write." But the fearful expressions which this elicited from my husband were so indescribable that I was compelled to desist at such for a time. I was not ill, but I had a fever, and day by day he attended me with the most hideous devotion.

The ship landed at Galle, where I got out, feeling more than half dead, and clung to throw up the whole thing—more so than ever when I found he had to bore me from me already.

Alone one evening in hotel at Galle, I heard again a voice, which I thought seemed familiar, raised in a foreign language, addressing one of the "sons of England." The voice drew nearer to me, I stood upright and marveled and incredulous. Presently Mr. Gould reached where I stood. With profound gravity I said: "Was that you?" Instantly he loaded me with a load of accusations, and I did not know what awful people the Singhalese are, and that they must be treated like br

THE TABERNACLE.

YESTERDAY'S SERMON BY DR. DE WITT TALMAGE

In Which He Has Something to Say to Those Who Frequent the Race Course and Live Fast Lives.

BROOKLYN, August 3.—Dr. Talmage has a timely topic for his sermon for today, in the use and abuse of summer resorts. His text is Mark vi, 31: "Come ye yourselves apart unto a desert place and rest awhile." Following is the sermon:

Here Christ advises His apostles to take a vacation. They had been living an excited as well as a useful life, and He advises that they go out into the country. I am glad that for longer or shorter time, multitudes of our people will have summer vacation. The railway trains are being laden with passengers and baggage on their way to the mountains and the seashore. Multitudes of our citizens are packing their trunks for a restorative absence.

The city heats are pursuing the people with torch and fear of sunstroke. The long silent halls of sumptuous hotels are all abuzz with excited arrivals. The crystallizing surface of Winnipeg is shattered with the stroke of steamer, laden with excursionists. The antlers of Adirondack deer rattle under the shot of city sportsmen. The trout make fatal snags at the hook of adroit sportsmen and toss their spotted brilliants into the game basket.

Already the baton of the orchestral leader taps the music-stand on the hotel green, and American life puts on festal array, and the crack of the ivory balls on the green-baize billiard tables, and the jolting of the bar-room goblets, and the explosive uncorking of champagne bottles, and the whirl and the rustle of the ball-room dance, and the clattering hoofs of the race-courses, attest that the season for the great American watering-places is fairly launched.

Music—mirth and drum and cornet——bassoon and clapping cymbals—will wake the echoes of the mountain.

My friends, whether you tarry at home which will be quite as safe and perhaps quite as comfortable—or go into the country, arm yourself against temptation. The grace of God is the only safe shelter, whether in town or country. There are watering places accessible to all of us. You cannot open a book of the Bible and not find a water cure.

Thomas Chalmers, in the dark hours of the church's disruption, played kite for recreation—as I was told by his own daughter—and the busy Christ said to the busy apostles: "Come ye apart awhile into the desert and rest yourselves."

And I have observed that the who ever know how to rest do not know how to work.

But I have to declare this truth today, that some of our fashionable watering places are the temporal and eternal destruction of "a multitude that no man can number," and amid the congratulations of this season and the prospect of the next, of many for the country, I trust after a note of warning—plain, earnest and unmistakable.

The first temptation that is apt to hover in this direction is to leave your piety all at home.

You will send the dog and cat and canary bird to well cared for somewhere else; but the temptation to leave your piety all at home, with the lamps down and the door bolted, and then you will come back in the autumn to find that it is starved and suffocated, lying stretched on the rug stark dead.

There is no surplus of piety in the watering places. I never knew any one to grow very rapidly in grace at the fashionable watering places.

And the Sabbath is more of a counsel than any other day, and there are Sunday walks and Sunday rides and Sunday excursions.

Elders and deacons and ministers of religion who are entirely consistent at home, sometimes when the Sabbath days on them at Niagara Falls or the White Mountain take the day to the water, are apt to be very glad to see you again in the autumn."

In the autumn, when you are hard at work in your office, or shop, or counting room, Good health will come and say: "Good-bye, I am going."

You say: "Where are you going?" "Oh, you say Good Health, "I am going to take a vacation, that will be good for me."

Some of you are too weak to take a step in that direction. Then we take you up in the arms of our closing prayer and plunge you clean under the wave, hoping that the cure may be as sudden and as radical as with Captain Naaman, who, bloated and carbuncled, was washed in the Jordan, and after the seventh dive, came up a skin rosy-complexioned as the flesh of a little child.

The peculiar medical properties of Hood's Sarsaparilla are soon apparent after taking it. One lady says: "It shows its good effect quicker than any other medicine I ever saw."

TRY IT.

The other temptation hovering around the watering place is the formation of hasty and life-long alliances. The watering places are responsible for more of the domestic infelicities of this country than all the other things combined. Society is so often the scene of the most adapted to excite admiration; and in those churches, from the way the ladies hold their faces, you know that they are not the most attractive in the eyes of the water-places with the prettinesses of half-dressed features.

Four puny souls stand in the organ loft and squall a tune that nobody knows, and wavers, with $2,000 worth of diamonds on the right hand, drop a cent into the poor-box, and then the meditation is prompted and the voice is quelled.

The air is filled with "the world, the flesh and the devil." There are Christians who in three or four weeks in such a place have had such terrible rents made in their Christian robes that they had to keep drying it until Christmas to get it mended. The health of great numbers is ruined, and the nerves, peace, pardon, forgiveness, hope, etc., lie, heaven. "Ho, every one that thirsteth, come ye to this watering place!"

Crowd around this Bethesda! Step in! Oh, you sick, you lame, you troubled, you dying—crowd around this Bethesda! Step in! Oh, you sick, you lame, you troubled, you dying—

crowd around this Bethesda! Step in!

Some of you are too weak to take a step in that direction. Then we take you up in the arms of our closing prayer and plunge you clean under the wave, hoping that the cure may be as sudden and as radical as with Captain Naaman, who, bloated and carbuncled, was washed in the Jordan, and after the seventh dive, came up a skin rosy-complexioned as the flesh of a little child.

The peculiar medical properties of Hood's Sarsaparilla are soon apparent after taking it. One lady says: "It shows its good effect quicker than any other medicine I ever saw."

TRY IT.

The other temptation hovering around the watering place is the formation of hasty and life-long alliances. The watering places are responsible for more of the domestic infelicities of this country than all the other things combined. Society is so often the scene of the most adapted to excite admiration;

and in those churches, from the way the ladies hold their faces, you know that they are not the most attractive in the eyes of the water-places with the prettinesses of half-dressed features.

Four puny souls stand in the organ loft and squall a tune that nobody knows, and wavers, with $2,000 worth of diamonds on the right hand, drop a cent into the poor-box, and then the meditation is prompted and the voice is quelled.

The air is filled with "the world, the flesh and the devil." There are Christians who in three or four weeks in such a place have had such terrible rents made in their Christian robes that they had to keep drying it until Christmas to get it mended. The health of great numbers is ruined, and the nerves, peace, pardon, forgiveness, hope, etc., lie, heaven. "Ho, every one that thirsteth, come ye to this watering place!"

Crowd around this Bethesda! Step in! Oh,

you sick, you lame, you troubled, you dying—

crowd around this Bethesda! Step in!

Some of you are too weak to take a step in that direction. Then we take you up in the arms of our closing prayer and plunge you clean under the wave, hoping that the cure may be as sudden and as radical as with Captain Naaman, who, bloated and carbuncled, was washed in the Jordan, and after the seventh dive, came up a skin rosy-complexioned as the flesh of a little child.

The peculiar medical properties of Hood's Sars

—and all the other things combined.

TRY IT.

The other temptation hovering around the watering place is the formation of hasty and life-long alliances. The watering places are responsible for more of the domestic infelicities of this country than all the other things combined. Society is so often the scene of the most adapted to excite admiration;

and in those churches, from the way the ladies hold their faces, you know that they are not the most attractive in the eyes of the water-places with the prettinesses of half-dressed features.

Four puny souls stand in the organ loft and squall a tune that nobody knows, and wavers, with $2,000 worth of diamonds on the right hand, drop a cent into the poor-box, and then the meditation is prompted and the voice is quelled.

The air is filled with "the world, the flesh and the devil." There are Christians who in three or four weeks in such a place have had such terrible rents made in their Christian robes that they had to keep drying it until Christmas to get it mended. The health of great numbers is ruined, and the nerves, peace, pardon, forgiveness, hope, etc., lie, heaven. "Ho, every one that thirsteth, come ye to this watering place!"

Crowd around this Bethesda! Step in! Oh,

you sick, you lame, you troubled, you dying—

crowd around this Bethesda! Step in!

Some of you are too weak to take a step in that direction. Then we take you up in the arms of our closing prayer and plunge you clean under the wave, hoping that the cure may be as sudden and as radical as with Captain Naaman, who, bloated and carbuncled, was washed in the Jordan, and after the seventh dive, came up a skin rosy-complexioned as the flesh of a little child.

The peculiar medical properties of Hood's Sars

—and all the other things combined.

TRY IT.

The other temptation hovering around the watering place is the formation of hasty and life-long alliances. The watering places are responsible for more of the domestic infelicities of this country than all the other things combined. Society is so often the scene of the most adapted to excite admiration;

and in those churches, from the way the ladies hold their faces, you know that they are not the most attractive in the eyes of the water-places with the prettinesses of half-dressed features.

Four puny souls stand in the organ loft and squall a tune that nobody knows, and wavers, with $2,000 worth of diamonds on the right hand, drop a cent into the poor-box, and then the meditation is prompted and the voice is quelled.

The air is filled with "the world, the flesh and the devil." There are Christians who in three or four weeks in such a place have had such terrible rents made in their Christian robes that they had to keep drying it until Christmas to get it mended. The health of great numbers is ruined, and the nerves, peace, pardon, forgiveness, hope, etc., lie, heaven. "Ho, every one that thirsteth, come ye to this watering place!"

Crowd around this Bethesda! Step in! Oh,

you sick, you lame, you troubled, you dying—

crowd around this Bethesda! Step in!

Some of you are too weak to take a step in that direction. Then we take you up in the arms of our closing prayer and plunge you clean under the wave, hoping that the cure may be as sudden and as radical as with Captain Naaman, who, bloated and carbuncled, was washed in the Jordan, and after the seventh dive, came up a skin rosy-complexioned as the flesh of a little child.

The peculiar medical properties of Hood's S

—and all the other things combined.

TRY IT.

The other temptation hovering around the watering place is the formation of hasty and life-long alliances. The watering places are responsible for more of the domestic infelicities of this country than all the other things combined. Society is so often the scene of the most adapted to excite admiration;

and in those churches, from the way the ladies hold their faces, you know that they are not the most attractive in the eyes of the water-places with the prettinesses of half-dressed features.

Four puny souls stand in the organ loft and squall a tune that nobody knows, and wavers, with $2,000 worth of diamonds on the right hand, drop a cent into the poor-box, and then the meditation is prompted and the voice is quelled.

The air is filled with "the world, the flesh and the devil." There are Christians who in three or four weeks in such a place have had such terrible rents made in their Christian robes that they had to keep drying it until Christmas to get it mended. The health of great numbers is ruined, and the nerves, peace, pardon, forgiveness, hope, etc., lie, heaven. "Ho, every one that thirsteth, come ye to this watering place!"

Crowd around this Bethesda! Step in! Oh,

you sick, you lame, you troubled, you dying—

crowd around this Bethesda! Step in!

Some of you are too weak to take a step in that direction. Then we take you up in the arms of our closing prayer and plunge you clean under the wave, hoping that the cure may be as sudden and as radical as with Captain Naaman, who, bloated and carbuncled, was washed in the Jordan, and after the seventh dive, came up a skin rosy-complexioned as the flesh of a little child.

The peculiar medical properties of Hood's S

—and all the other things combined.

TRY IT.

The other temptation hovering around the watering place is the formation of hasty and life-long alliances. The watering places are responsible for more of the domestic infelicities of this country than all the other things combined. Society is so often the scene of the most adapted to excite admiration;

and in those churches, from the way the ladies hold their faces, you know that they are not the most attractive in the eyes of the water-places with the prettinesses of half-dressed features.

Four puny souls stand in the organ loft and squall a tune that nobody knows, and wavers, with $2,000 worth of diamonds on the right hand, drop a cent into the poor-box, and then the meditation is prompted and the voice is quelled.

The air is filled with "the world, the flesh and the devil." There are Christians who in three or four weeks in such a place have had such terrible rents made in their Christian robes that they had to keep drying it until Christmas to get it mended. The health of great numbers is ruined, and the nerves, peace, pardon, forgiveness, hope, etc., lie, heaven. "Ho, every one that thirsteth, come ye to this watering place!"

Crowd around this Bethesda! Step in! Oh,

you sick, you lame, you troubled, you dying—

crowd around this Bethesda! Step in!

Some of you are too weak to take a step in that direction. Then we take you up in the arms of our closing prayer and plunge you clean under the wave, hoping that the cure may be as sudden and as radical as with Captain Naaman, who, bloated and carbuncled, was washed in the Jordan, and after the seventh dive, came up a skin rosy-complexioned as the flesh of a little child.

The peculiar medical properties of Hood's S

—and all the other things combined.

TRY IT.

The other temptation hovering around the watering place is the formation of hasty and life-long alliances. The watering places are responsible for more of the domestic infelicities of this country than all the other things combined. Society is so often the scene of the most adapted to excite admiration;

and in those churches, from the way the ladies hold their faces, you know that they are not the most attractive in the eyes of the water-places with the prettinesses of half-dressed features.

Four puny souls stand in the organ loft and squall a tune that nobody knows, and wavers, with $2,000 worth of diamonds on the right hand, drop a cent into the poor-box, and then the meditation is prompted and the voice is quelled.

The air is filled with "the world, the flesh and the devil." There are Christians who in three or four weeks in such a place have had such terrible rents made in their Christian robes that they had to keep drying it until Christmas to get it mended. The health of great numbers is ruined, and the nerves, peace, pardon, forgiveness, hope, etc., lie, heaven. "Ho, every one that thirsteth, come ye to this watering place!"

Crowd around this Bethesda! Step in! Oh,

you sick, you lame, you troubled, you dying—

crowd around this Bethesda! Step in!

Some of you are too weak to take a step in that direction. Then we take you up in the arms of our closing prayer and plunge you clean under the wave, hoping that the cure may be as sudden and as radical as with Captain Naaman, who, bloated and carbuncled, was washed in the Jordan, and after the seventh dive, came up a skin rosy-complexioned as the flesh of a little child.

The peculiar medical properties of Hood's S

—and all the other things combined.

TRY IT.

The other temptation hovering around the watering place is the formation of hasty and life-long alliances. The watering places are responsible for more of the domestic infelicities of this country than all the other things combined. Society is so often the scene of the most adapted to excite admiration;

and in those churches, from the way the ladies hold their faces, you know that they are not the most attractive in the eyes of the water-places with the prettinesses of half-dressed features.

Four puny souls stand in the organ loft and squall a tune that nobody knows, and wavers, with $2,000 worth of diamonds on the right hand, drop a cent into the poor-box, and then the meditation is prompted and the voice is quelled.

The air is filled with "the world, the flesh and the devil." There are Christians who in three or four weeks in such a place have had such terrible rents made in their Christian robes that they had to keep drying it until Christmas to get it mended. The health of great numbers is ruined, and the nerves, peace, pardon, forgiveness, hope, etc., lie, heaven. "Ho, every one that thirsteth, come ye to this watering place!"

Crowd around this Bethesda! Step in! Oh,

you sick, you lame, you troubled, you dying—

crowd around this Bethesda! Step in!

<p

THE CONSTITUTION.

PUBLISHED DAILY, SUNDAY AND WEEKLY.
 The Daily (including Sunday), $10.00
 The Sunday (20 or 24 Pages), 2.00
 The Weekly (12 Pages), 1.00
 All editions Sent Postpaid.

VOLUNTEER contributions for which compensation is desired must be marked with the price excepted.
 Keep copies of articles. We do not undertake to return rejected MSS.

THE DAILY CONSTITUTION,
 INCLUDING THE SUNDAY EDITION.
 Will be delivered to any address in the city at TWENTY CENTS PER WEEK.
 Subscribe at once.

THE SUNDAY CONSTITUTION
 $2 A YEAR.
 SENT TO ANY ADDRESS.

ATLANTA, GA., AUGUST 4, 1890.

Still Agitating.

The response that has been made to THE CONSTITUTION's plan of defense has been overwhelming. This fact has not appeared in the newspapers, but it has manifested itself among the people both at the north and at the south.

An Alabama correspondent of The New York Herald says that the state is literally torn up on the question of the force bill, and little else is talked of. In the black belt, the feeling against the republican party is said to be intense, and it is stated that the leaders will not put forth a single candidate.

Bearing in mind the fact that the people of Alabama were as apathetic in regard to the force bill three weeks ago as the people of other parts of the country, this sudden development of feeling is little short of wonderful. It shows that while the newspapers have been belittling the plans and purposes of THE CONSTITUTION the people have been responding and endorsing them in a practical way.

The feeling has spread even to the white republicans of Alabama, and we are told that there is not one in the state who is not opposed to the passage of the force bill. Some of them have gone so far as to join the democratic party. Conspicuous among these is Colonel F. G. Brown, of Winston county, who declares that there is no place in the republican party of the south for white men.

The Farmers' Alliance of Alabama is up in arms against the bill, and the proposition to force it through the senate has caused the most intense excitement among the agriculturists. In Alabama, as in most of the southern states, thousands of the farmers are among the subscribers to THE CONSTITUTION and not a protest against its attitude has come from them.

There is no longer apathy anywhere. North and south the people have been aroused to the necessity of making their influence felt in opposition to the force bill in any, and they are carrying on the agitation in earnest.

Mr. Mills's Plain English.

The Baltimore American denounces Mr. Mills, of Texas, as a turbulent and sensational congressman.

It appears that Mr. Mills, in a recent speech in Missouri, said:

"A bold wrench, occupying one of the highest positions in the government, who tramples under foot the rights of minorities and thanks God for the opportunity, has made of the people's representative body a military camp in which the subordinates get their orders daily. But that Saxon spirit which has dethroned kings and broken scepters will teach him the lesson which it has taught every usurper who has attempted to curb it."

Our Baltimore contemporary protests against this as intemperate language, but it strikes us that the gentleman from Texas has simply called things by their right names. He evidently believes in calling a man on so important a subject, and we earnestly urge our readers to avail themselves of this opportunity.

The truth is, this casual discussion which Editor Walsh insists on pursuing, grew out of the fact that THE CONSTITUTION refused to be drawn by the Snoozes and the Toolegraphs into an unnecessary and unprofitable controversy over the subtreasury bill. We remarked that the subtreasury bill is as democratic in every part and feature as the internal revenue system, and that, on account of that fact, the doctrinaires and the one-horse editors ought not to be hard on the poor farmers.

The Chronicle, in response to this, says it has always condemned the internal revenue system as undemocratic and unjust. If our contemporary will pardon the suggestion, this does not alter the case at all. It merely places The Chronicle in a position to be read out of the party by the Morning Snoozes and the Toolegraphs. All the democratic doctrinaires have endorsed the internal revenue system during the past two years, and it must now be a good democratic affair.

SAYS A NEW YORK EXCHANGE: The bet made between John Matthews, the mayor of the Bowery, and John Kelly, Tammany leader of the fourteenth assembly district, in the talk of Mr. Matthews, was $10,000 that if Grand and Gray ran up good authority that a syndicate of book publishers in this city have also made arrangements to put fifty or a hundred typesetting machines into a co-operative office, where all the body of cheap publications turned out in New York will be set up. This arrangement, which will be in working order before the first of next January, is likely to increase the annual output of novels by 100 per cent. and reduce the low price one-half.

THE WASHINGTON POST is in hysterics because we found it necessary to remind some of our contemporaries that the late Henry W. Grady started the successful boycott of the jute bagging trust.

EVERYBODY WANTS TO READ THE "KREUTZER SONATA": we see whether Mr. Wanamaker was justified in excluding it from the mails.

LAST FRIDAY Philadelphia and Atlanta showed up in the signal officer reports as the two hottest places in the country.

IN OUR ARMY AND NAVY OFFICERS RETIRE FROM ACTIVE DUTY AT THE AGE OF SIXTY: In Europe men of that age are still in the field.

CRISPI IS TULY AS OLD, AND IS ONE OF THE MOST IMPORTANT POLITICAL FACTORS IN ITALY: Gladstone, a statesman, and works hard. Something is wrong with our climate or our men.

Zachry, of Henry county, was nominated for senator Saturday. His opponent was Mr. William McComas, and he was defeated only by a small majority. Gwinnett will stand by Henry's choice, so we congratulate Colonel Zachry as our next senator. In our opinion Henry county has made a wise choice.

GLIMPSES OF GEORGIA.

A BIG CAMPMEETING WILL COMMENCE IN COLQUITT COUNTY ON TUESDAY NIGHT, AUGUST 12TH.

THE FALUSKI RECORDER NOTES A CURIOSITY IN THE SHAPE OF A SHANK ON WHICH ARE THREE LARGE EARS OF CORN. It was grown on the farm of Mr. R. W. Wyche, who has numbers of stalks in the field with three well-grown ears on them.

J. W. R. HALEY, of Carnesville, is the champion fisherman of that section. He caught an eel from W. C. Hall's carp pond that was three feet nine inches long, nine inches in circumference, and weighed 100 pounds. Elias Davidson, of Troup county, has issued elegant cards of invitation to his friends to attend their golden wedding on the 13th of August.

THE 6TH OF AUGUST IS ALLIANCE DAY IN COVINGTON. Governor Gordon, Hon. L. F. Livingston, and other celebrated speakers will be present, and a grand time is anticipated.

JUDGE JOHN P. HARRIS, of Covington, is one of the largest hay farmers in Newton county. He has 130 acres of corn and peas sown broadcast, and about twenty acres of grass. It all promises an abundant yield.

JUDGE JOHN P. HARRIS, of Covington, is one of the largest hay farmers in Newton county. He has 130 acres of corn and peas sown broadcast, and about twenty acres of grass. It all promises an abundant yield.

THE LINE OF THE MIDDLE GEORGIA AND ATLANTIC RAILROAD, between Newborn and Macon, is to be almost literally covered with the grading work.

IN WEBSTER COUNTY A CHILD FELL ON A SIX-YEAR-OLD CHILD AND CRUSHED IT TO DEATH.

LA GRANGE REPORTER: Troup county shares the increase in value of property which characterizes the tax assessor's books all over Georgia. Last year (1889) the total property returned was $3,576,692. This year it is $3,718,460—an increase of $141,708. Nearly two-thirds of this has taken place in LaGrange and vicinity—$2,680 being the increase in this militia district.

A SHOOTING MATCH BETWEEN SAVANNAH AND BRUNSWICK WILL TAKE PLACE IN BRUNSWICK AUGUST 15TH.

THE TROUP COUNTY SUNDAY-SCHOOL ASSOCIATION WILL MEET ON TUESDAY NEXT—the 5TH INST.

PARAGRAPHIC PENCILINGS.

SOME OF THE ABLEST WRITERS FOR THE RELIGIOUS PRESS ARE BEGINNING TO REALIZE THAT THE MULTIPLICATION OF SOCIETIES FOR VARIOUS MORAL PURPOSES IS LIKELY TO PROVE A HINDRANCE TO THE CHURCH IN ITS LEGITIMATE WORK. THE DANGER SEEMS IMMINENT THAT THE CHURCH WILL BE CUMBERED AND WEAKENED BY A SUPERABUNDANCE OF MACHINERY. NOR IS IT LESS TO BE FEARED THAT INDIVIDUAL CHRISTIAN EFFORTS WILL BE WEAKENED OR UNTILLY PARALYZED. THE "FAD" COMES FROM NEW ENGLAND, WHERE AMONGST SOME GOOD THINGS MANY EVIL THINGS ARE WONT TO ORIGINATE.

EDITOR IRWIN, OF THE COUNCIL, SOLID SOUTH, IS PUTTING IN SOME GOOD WORK ON HIS PAPER. LOCAL AND EDITORIAL PAGES ARE FAIRLY BLOSSOMING OF LATE.

A LEE COUNTY EDITOR IS SAID TO BE RESPONSIBLE FOR THE FOLLOWING:

IF EVERY LOST DELINQUENT WOULD PAY UP WHAT HE OWES,
 AN EDITOR MIGHT REACH THE LAND
 WHERE MILK AND HONEY FLOWS.

LA GRANGE HAS GOOD CAUSE TO BE PROUD OF HER NEWSPAPERS, AND IT IS VERY EVIDENT THAT THE PEOPLE OF TROUP COUNTY ARE GIVING THEM A LIBERAL SUPPORT.

A WESTERN EXCHANGE REMARKS THAT "THE GEORGIA EDITOR IS AN OLD FELLOW." IT WILL ALSO BE FOUND THAT HE IS FREQUENTLY A MASON, TOO.

EDITOR BLUE, OF THE SOUTHERN LOGUE, REMARKS THAT PLUNKETT, OF THE CONSTITUTION, IS "THE BEST POET SINCE CHANCER." OUR LITERARY BRETHREN OF THE NORTH WILL PLEASE MAKE A NOTE OF THIS.

EDITOR PERRY, OF THAT REMARKABLE BRIGHT PAPER, THE CHEROKEE ADVANCE, IS WHOOPING UP THE ECHOES IN HIS COUNTY.

EDITOR CARPENTER, OF THE ELBERTON RECORDER, IS PUTTING IN SOME GOOD WORK ON HIS PAPER. ELBERT COUNTY IS A GREAT FIELD FOR GOOD NEWSPAPERS.

SID COOK HAS MADE AN IMPRESSION IN ALBANY. HE IS ALREADY RETURNING THANKS FOR BEAUTIFUL BOUQUETS FROM "LOVING DONORS."

IN THE POLITICAL FIELD.

HON. MOSES MARTIN, OF GWINNETT, WHO WAS DOCKEEPER OF THE LAST HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, IS A CANDIDATE FOR RE-ELECTION.

THE WEST POINT PRESS SAYS THE REPORT THAT CAPTAIN J. W. F. L. TAYLOR WAS A CANDIDATE FOR CONGRESS IN THE INDEPENDENT TICKET IS FALSE. CAPTAIN LEE ANDREW TAYLOR IS THE CANDIDATE OF HIS RUNNING FOR CONGRESS.

—ON TUESDAY NEXT, THE 5TH OF AUGUST, THE COUNTY CONVENTION WILL BE HELD IN GAINESVILLE TO SELECT DELEGATES TO THE GOVERNORIAL, CONGRESSIONAL AND SENATORIAL CONVENTIONS, AND TO NOMINATE TWO CANDIDATES FOR THE LEGISLATURE. ON THE 13TH OF AUGUST THE DISTRICT CONVENTION WILL BE HELD IN GAINESVILLE TO NOMINATE A CANDIDATE FOR CONGRESS.

—THE NAME OF MR. M. W. SIMMONS HAS BEEN SUGGESTED BY "MANY DEMOCRATS" AS A CANDIDATE FOR THE OFFICE OF TAX RECEIVER OF THOMAS COUNTY.

—MR. B. B. PERRY HAS ANNOUNCED IN THE DAWSON NEWS THAT HE WILL BE A CANDIDATE FOR RE-ELECTION TO THE OFFICE OF TREASURER OF THE STATE.

—THE DAWSON NEWS SAYS IT REPORTS THAT A NEGRO SCHOOL TEACHER, NAMED JOHNSON, WILL BE A CANDIDATE FOR THE SENATE FROM TERRELL COUNTY, AND THAT A NEGRO NAMED WILLIAMS WILL RUN FOR THE HOUSE.

—ON TUESDAY NEXT, THE 5TH OF AUGUST, THE COUNTY CONVENTION WILL BE HELD IN GAINESVILLE TO SELECT DELEGATES TO THE GOVERNORIAL, CONGRESSIONAL AND SENATORIAL CONVENTIONS, AND TO NOMINATE TWO CANDIDATES FOR THE LEGISLATURE. ON THE 13TH OF AUGUST THE DISTRICT CONVENTION WILL BE HELD IN GAINESVILLE TO NOMINATE A CANDIDATE FOR CONGRESS.

—THE NAME OF MR. M. W. SIMMONS HAS BEEN SUGGESTED BY "MANY DEMOCRATS" AS A CANDIDATE FOR THE OFFICE OF TAX RECEIVER OF THOMAS COUNTY.

—MR. B. B. PERRY HAS ANNOUNCED IN THE DAWSON NEWS THAT HE WILL BE A CANDIDATE FOR RE-ELECTION TO THE OFFICE OF TREASURER OF THE STATE.

—THE DAWSON NEWS SAYS IT REPORTS THAT A NEGRO SCHOOL TEACHER, NAMED JOHNSON, WILL BE A CANDIDATE FOR THE SENATE FROM TERRELL COUNTY, AND THAT A NEGRO NAMED WILLIAMS WILL RUN FOR THE HOUSE.

—ON TUESDAY NEXT, THE 5TH OF AUGUST, THE COUNTY CONVENTION WILL BE HELD IN GAINESVILLE TO SELECT DELEGATES TO THE GOVERNORIAL, CONGRESSIONAL AND SENATORIAL CONVENTIONS, AND TO NOMINATE TWO CANDIDATES FOR THE LEGISLATURE. ON THE 13TH OF AUGUST THE DISTRICT CONVENTION WILL BE HELD IN GAINESVILLE TO NOMINATE A CANDIDATE FOR CONGRESS.

—IT IS REPORTED THAT DR. BALDWIN, OF RANDOLPH COUNTY, IS IN THE RACE FOR THE SENATE, AGAINST MR. A. C. HILL, TERRELL COUNTY'S CHOICE.

—ELBERT COUNTY WILL HOLD A MASS MEETING ON THE FIRST TUESDAY IN AUGUST TO DECIDE WHETHER THEY WILL CALL PRIMARIES OR ELECT DELEGATES BY MASS MEETING FOR CONGRESSIONAL CANDIDATES.

—COLONEL ROGER GAMBLE, OF LOUISVILLE, APPEARS TO BE MAKING A LIVELY RACE FOR THE JUDGESHIP OF THE MIDDLE CIRCUIT, JUDGE HINES HAVING DECLARED THAT HE WOULD NO LONGER FILL THE POSITION.

—THE AMERICAN TIMES DENIES THE REPORT THAT JACK BROWN WILL RUN AS A REPUBLICAN AGAINST CRISP FOR CONGRESS.

—BRUNSWICK TIMES: MERCER UNIVERSITY GRADUATE, THE SON OF THE FOUNDER, IS WAVE IN GEORGIA.

—HON. W. J. NORTON, HON. C. L. MOSES, HON. T. WATSON AND SEVERAL OTHER POLITICAL FAVORITES ARE GRADUATES OF MERCER.

—BRUNSWICK TIMES: IF THE FARMERS OF GEORGIA DESIRE TO HONOR A MAN WHO, SINCE THE DAY HE WROTE HIS FIRST ARTICLE FOR A NEWSPAPER, HAS BEEN THEIR FRIEND, THEY WILL SEE IT THAT CLARK HOWELL, OF THE COUNTY OF FULTON, IS ELECTED SPEAKER OF THE HOUSE OF THE NEXT GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

—COLONEL EMMETT WOMACK, J. W. ANDERSON, ALEXANDER F. FRANKLIN AND DR. GIBSON HAVE BEEN CHOSEN AS DELEGATES TO THE FIFTH CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT CONVENTION.

—IT IS THE OPINION OF THE BRUNSWICK TIMES THAT THE YOUNG MEN'S DEMOCRATIC CLUB OF GLYNN COUNTY OUGHT TO SEND ITS OWN MINOR MATTERS AND GO TO WORK TO ELECT HARRY BROWN.

—EDITOR HALSTEAD SAYS THE SENATE WILL BE REPUBLICAN DURING THE PRESENT CENTURY. HE TAKES NO ACCOUNT OF THE SUNSTROKES AND COMMUNES.

—IF MR. BLAINE INTERFERES WITH THE PASSAGE OF THE MCKINLEY BILL, WHAT IS TO BECOME OF THE REPUBLICAN CAMPAIGN?

—MR. BENJAMIN HARRISON TOOK A SURF BATH THE OTHER DAY, LEAVING THE DEED FOR HIS ONE-DOLLAR COTTAGE IN HIS "PANTS." EVEN A PRESIDENT, IT SEEMS, CAN BE VERY THOUGHTFUL AT TIMES.

—THE REMARKS OF SOME OF OUR SOUTHERN CONTEMPORARIES AGAINST THE BOYCOTT HAVE BEEN INTERPRETED BY THE REPUBLICAN ORGANS AS ARGUMENTS IN FAVOR OF THE FORCE BILL.

—EDITOR WALSH IS NOW ENGAGED IN DRAWING THE LINES OF TRUE DEMOCRACY. NEXT WEEK HE WILL BE READ OUT OF THE PARTY BY MORNING SNOOZE AND THE TOOLEGRAPH.

—THE BABIES OF THE COUNTRY WILL BE GLAD TO LEARN THAT THE DUTY ON CASTOR OIL IS NOT TO BE REDUCED.

—EDITOR HALSTEAD SAYS THE SENATE WILL BE REPUBLICAN DURING THE PRESENT CENTURY. HE TAKES NO ACCOUNT OF THE SUNSTROKES AND COMMUNES.

—THE NEW YORK STAR SAYS: "THE SUCCESSFUL INTRODUCTION OF TYPESETTING MACHINES INTO A NUMBER OF NEWSPAPER OFFICES IN THIS COUNTRY HAS STIMULATED THEIR COMPETITORS, AND EARLY IN THE AUTUMN,

THE POPULATION OF THE STATE OF NEW HAMPSHIRE IS 50,000 LESS THAN THAT OF BOSTON.

—THE MASTER OF THE BOSTON HERALD HOUNDS CONDEMNED THOSE WHO EAT FOXES.

—EDITORIAL COMMENT.

—THE NEW YORK STAR SAYS: "THE SUCCESSFUL INTRODUCTION OF TYPESETTING MACHINES INTO A NUMBER OF NEWSPAPER OFFICES IN THIS COUNTRY HAS STIMULATED THEIR COMPETITORS, AND EARLY IN THE AUTUMN,

THE POPULATION OF THE STATE OF NEW HAMPSHIRE IS 50,000 LESS THAN THAT OF BOSTON.

—THE LITHOVIA NEW ERA: COLONEL CHAMBERS *

AND OTHERS HAVE BEEN NOMINATED FOR SENATOR SATURDAY. HIS OPPONENT WAS MR. WILLIAM MCCORMACK, AND HE WAS DEFEATED ONLY BY A SMALL MAJORITY. GWINNETT AND GWINNETT WILL STAND BY HENRY'S CHOICE, SO WE CONGRATULATE COLONEL ZACHRY AS OUR NEXT SENATOR. IN OUR OPINION HENRY COUNTY HAS MADE A WISE CHOICE.

—THE GREAT BATTLE BETWEEN BLOUNT AND HUGHES.

Colonel Hughes Issues an Address to the People of the Sixth, in Which He Complains of His Treatment.

MACON, GA., AUGUST 3.—[Special.]—The Blount and Hughes men are not resting on their oars today except for the fact that it is Sunday. They have been moving around right lately and preparing for the great primary contest tomorrow.

A report is in circulation today that Hughes has withdrawn but left unfinished. No work which Niebuhr began but left unfinished. No work which Niebuhr began but left unfinished.

The Nuttall-Dale-Paulding county super morning, Judge Ma

The readers of

The Nuttall-Dale-Paulding county super morning, Judge Ma

BIBB.

LE BETWEEN HUGHES.

An Address to the in Which He Treatment.

3.—[Special.]—The are not resting on the facts is Sunday, round right lively at primary contest.

circulation today drawn from the went against him, without foundation, whatever of withdrawal he has a good and Jasper and he can win the fight to the finish, at the polls tomorrow.

absolutely certain of our country by large at the idea of the Hughes will defeat that, 2,000 votes Blount men say Blount's a snow storm in body will be frozen must admit, how eight days' canvas, strength. His racial Colonel Hughes his supporters and he has conducted his ARMS.ian Blount received on the sergeant-at- representatives in Wash- t all proxies have congressmen are di- ghton at once.

SAYS. one of the speak- ing last night, sted and eloquent his morning, in re-

The major dis- length that his as monopolizing the got, got hold of one of down."

his friends say ne- and the major to say for him that untrue.

ADDRESS. used the following of the 5th Congress-of the important privi- fice it my duty as a- to you that the hands of my air play and a disagree place, my candidacy of July, 1886. I had to be given a fair

to discuss tival issues on the public-depen-

executive commit-

day. It was state-

us notice."

not say, but I know

the meeting of the

the 6th of August. I

until their action

then, did they give for me to have a

influence to me of this

Omitting Sunday,

that holy day,

which to canvas

consider that to do

people, and travel

hundreds of miles, is the opportunity of public discussion—in before the people which had not been

been playing on the past eighteen years,

democratic was this? It

The election is was then no hurry. I men on the com-

the 10th instead of

down. The others

third district where date is the 14th of mag m., and the com-

as if they had upon you, Ameri-

cana, free discussion

and stigmatize

they have fastened

is not the worse.

Honors my opponents

to report to influence government of the

has appropriated

and to defeat

by lie never fail from

of the perjurer.

insult to the inter-

doubtless it is

if you do it beseech who utters it that

and the truth is

is on us I stood in the gray. The great

Trot Tombs fleeing

a safe refuge in my hazard of my life

in under my roof,

and then quitted

and stigmatize

a slander, and I,

in the last

unscrupulous liars

reading the report

the race. Never democracy in my life

for the farmer

are nailed to the

the end

a clear conscience,

it was placed upon ments with whom I

years. Asking re-against calumny and sound respect, your

DAN G. HUGHES.

change in the hos-

shared with those of

I had dinner at the

and when I paid for

out of a ten dollar

one, who had a care-

of measuring to do

boy's ears, and the

an inch off the pole-refugees, beams and dried dollars to the

ID THERE.

man in St. Louis,

play eight musical clubs, of New Jersey

states senate.

ister expects his memories.

one mother died as the other day.

son will attend the

NUTALL OR DALE?

THE CASE WILL BE CALLED IN DALLAS TODAY.

The Sensational Story Surrounding the Life of One of Atlanta's Baptist Ministers to be Ventilated.

The Nutall-Dale case will be called in Paulding county superior court at Dallas, this morning. Judge Maddox presiding.

The readers of THE CONSTITUTION are familiar with the case.

A more interesting story is not to be found, and a great many people in Atlanta, Dallas, Rockmart, Conyers and in several cities in North Carolina where the accused is supposed to have lived, are watching it with unusual interest.

Walter R. Dale, J. H. Fontaine and J. O. H. Nutall are the names under which the accused is said to have lived.

Atlanta knows him as Walter R. Dale.

At the time Dale was arrested he was pastor of the Seventh Baptist church in Atlanta; was well thought of by his flock and by all who knew him. He worked in the Christian Index office and had the confidence of all with whom he was associated there.

During last fall an Atlanta gentleman was walking along the streets, and seeing Dale, accosted him. Nutall, but Dale denied being a Nutall. Since then Dale has traveled a rough road. Other persons who had known J. O. H. Nutall in different places in North Carolina, saw Dale and were positive that he and Nutall were the same.

The Nutall-Dale case is the sensation of the day and was carefully investigated.

A man named O. H. Nutall was located in North Carolina, where he had a living wife and three children.

A man named J. H. Fontaine was found in Conyers, Ga., with a wife, a Miss Rawlings, of North Carolina, subsequent to Nutall's disappearance from Carolina.

A man named R. Dale was traced from Conyers, through Dallas and Rockmart, to Atlanta.

Nutall, Fontaine and Dale not only looked alike, but acted alike.

Finally he was positively identified as Nutall and was arrested and jailed.

His arrest created quite a sensation in all the papers and was well known. Dale was employed Messrs. W. J. Spears, C. T. Conner, Judge J. A. Anderson and Colonel Ivy Thompson to defend him, but when the case was called in Paulding county the defense made a motion for a continuance, which Judge Maddox granted.

At that time quite a number of men, and among them Mr. George Horton, a brother of Mrs. Nutall, Dale's first wife, from North Carolina and other places where Dale had been known, appeared as state witnesses.

Dale claims that he is not guilty, and is sure he can successfully prove an alibi.

When the trial was granted to a continuance, Dale stated to THE CONSTITUTION man that if the trial had proceeded he would have been found guilty, as a prelude was not long enough time for him to prepare for the case. His bond was placed at $1,000, and Dr. T. J. Foster, of Dallas, signed it. On December 1st Dale was released on his own recognizance, but last fall resigned the pastorate of his church.

By many it was predicted that the Rev. Dale would skip the country before this trial, but Wednesday found him in Dallas, ready for the trial which will begin today.

Last December Dale expressed the opinion that the prosecuting witness would fail to appear in this term of the court, but in this he is mistaken, as the witnesses from North Carolina and those in Georgia are ready. They are sure that Dale, Fontaine and Nutall are different names for the same man. They have no doubt about it, and Nutall was last seen in Atlanta, and was last fall, but last fall resigned the pastorate of his church.

"He's mostly on God's green earth but Nutall, and all of these men here know it as well as I do. We all know him in North Carolina. Look at this picture, which Mr. Deahl has, the same as Nutall was last seen, and this is just like the one, which was taken last fall. Dale's friends have offered money for that picture.

"He's writing Nutall has done from 1870 on down to the present, and it all just alike."

Mr. Rawlings, the brother of the young lady whom Fontaine married, and to whom he is now wedded, has written him bringing some letters. These letters from Fontaine to Miss Rawlings after her return to her home. He writes these under the name of Fontaine, and written in characters. The letters and the key to them were shown. The CONSTITUTION yesterday evening, and they are all in good order.

Mr. Rawlings is all of this correspondence in his possession, and will produce it as evidence. When Fontaine went to Rockmart, he wrote Miss Rawlings a letter, part of it being in character, telling her to write him as Captain Walter R. Dale. This linked Dale and Fontaine closely.

A great many of Dale's Atlanta friends are Dale and he has summoned a great number of witnesses.

Solicitor Charley Jones, of Cedartown, and Colonel C. D. McGregor, of Dallas, will appear for the state.

FRANKLIN'S RIVER FACILITIES.

The Report Favorable as to the Feasibility of the Plan.

FRANKLIN, Ga., August 3.—[Special.]—Franklin is in a small state of excitement.

Our people have long considered the navigation of the Chattahoochee a settled fact, as determined by citizens had decided to build a dam across the river to secure the services of Professor Brown, of Athens, to make a complete survey of the river. The report of the survey was received yesterday, and is much more favorable than the most sanguine had anticipated.

The news which has taken greatest interest in the enterprise from the beginning, in the construction of a dam, was the report which was received, but came out in an extra announcing all the facts. The boat line is a practical certainty and will be pushed rapidly through. You may keep your eye on Franklin. It is the center of a wonderful section of undeveloped riches, and with transportation facilities will be all that it takes to become what THE CONSTITUTION calls a hub.

Mass Meeting in Ware.

WATCROSS, Ga., August 3.—[Special.]—

Ware county held its annual convention to nominate a representative and county officers. The meeting divided upon the list of delegates, and there was considerable spirited debate before an hour for closing the vote could be determined upon. When the polls were opened the two factions of the meeting proceeded to vote, the result being that the Democratic ticket of eighteen names was elected by a good majority. A representative will be nominated next Saturday. It is now understood that Hon. W. B. McDonald, the present representative, and T. H. Morton, president of the county alliance, will be nominated in December.

An Alliance Barbecue.

CARROLLTON, Ga., August 3.—[Special.]—

There was a big alliance barbecue at Edens church, near Bowden yesterday. Professor Z. H. P. Beck and R. E. Harper made addresses. W. G. Daniel, candidate for the legislature, made speeches. There were near two thousand people present, and his candidates had a lively time.

A Vote in Laurens.

DURHAM, N. C., August 3.—[Special.]—In the primary yesterday Dr. J. T. Chappell, the nominee of the alliance, received 714, Captain Bishop 62. Bishop's vote was small on account of many refusing to go into the nomination.

Crisp was endorsed for congress. Northern received 810; R. U. Hardeman, 829; W. A. Wright, 132; Clifford Anderson, 765; T. H. Morton, 737; Cook, 531. The election was very quiet.

Paper Mills Destroyed.

DANVILLE, N. Y., August 3.—The Whitman paper mill was burned early this morning. The loss is $150,000 insurance $100,000.

"LOCK ME UP."

Lee Peacock Gets Full of Liquor and then Takes Justice by the Forelock.

Lee Peacock, who is well known as a player of police court roles, slept in the station house last night.

Early in the evening he walked rather unsteadily into the office and asked to be locked up.

"Cap'n," he said, "I want you to do me a favor. Lock me up till mornin'."

Captain Wright urged him up, as he passed behind the railing.

"I've had a drink or two, captain, and I'm afraid if I get on the street some policeman'll run me in. I feel it coming, captain, lock me up, won't you?"

Lee Peacock has given a birth in the rear. He was not at first known to get, but he would undoubtedly have been joyful if he hadn't switched off at the station house in time. By so doing he saved himself from paying a fine, before the recorder, which object he had in view when he came in to court.

"I've had a drink or two, captain, and I'm afraid if I get on the street some policeman'll run me in. I feel it coming, captain, lock me up, won't you?"

Lee Peacock, who is well known as a player of police court roles, slept in the station house last night.

Early in the evening he walked rather unsteadily into the office and asked to be locked up.

"Cap'n," he said, "I want you to do me a favor. Lock me up till mornin'."

Captain Wright urged him up, as he passed behind the railing.

"I've had a drink or two, captain, and I'm afraid if I get on the street some policeman'll run me in. I feel it coming, captain, lock me up, won't you?"

Lee Peacock has given a birth in the rear. He was not at first known to get, but he would undoubtedly have been joyful if he hadn't switched off at the station house in time. By so doing he saved himself from paying a fine, before the recorder, which object he had in view when he came in to court.

"I've had a drink or two, captain, and I'm afraid if I get on the street

LIVELY

Business during the dull months was brought about by our attractive stock and low prices. Business is never dull, hence our stock is always full, fresh and complete.

FREEMAN & CRANKSHAW

PILE

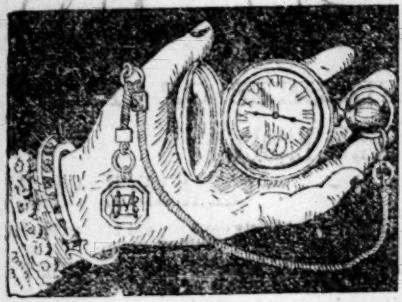

Cured by your own hands. Iching, blind bleeding and protruding relieved at once, and a small increase.

DANIEL WOLF'S MEXICAN PILE CURE, 50¢. Drugs or mail. Manufactured by Mexican Pile Cure Company, Fifteen building, Atlanta, Ga. Other remedies relieve; our cures without pain.

match 10-12-12

OPIUM and Whiskey Habits cured at home without pain. Book of particular sent FREE.

M. WOLF, D. B. 1015 Whitehall St.

For the Next Few Weeks

we are offering special bargains in Watches, Diamonds, Jewelry, etc.

It will pay you to call and examine our stock before purchasing.

MAIER & BERKELE,

93 Whitehall St.

A. L. DELKIN. CHAS. H. GIRARDEAU

DELKIN & GIRARDEAU, Real Estate and Renting Agents

4 East Alabama St.

$4,500—13 vacant lots near Technological school.

Here's your chance to double your money given.

$4,500—Cheapest lot, Washington street; near in.

$3,500—Cheapest lot on Washington street.

$3,700—100x175 Washington street; the gem of the Heights.

$1,500—Washington Heights; a bargain.

$4,750 will scoop a bargain in a vacant lot; corner lot on Jackson street, 103x213.

$1,500—Smith street, near Whitehall.

$1,000—Forest avenue lot, near Jackson. This is decidedly the cheapest lot on this avenue.

$1,850—Shaded Jackson street lot, near electric line.

Vacant lot corner Fullam and Fulton street, cheap.

$1,500—Highland avenue corner lot.

$1,000—Two 4-room houses on Ellis, near in; will pay 17% per cent.

$1,000 will buy three vacant lots Fort street.

$475—Shaded lot, Martin street, near Georgia avenue.

$3,500 will buy a lot 100x190 on Edgewood avenue. Investors note this.

$100 will buy a choice lot near Fair street dummy line.

Those having tracts suitable for subdivision or acreage property should confer with us.

DELKIN & GIRARDEAU,

4 East Alabama street.

June 20—dim un m&b or top 2d or 8d sp

Sand. Sand. Sand.

We make the sand business a specialty, and can supply you promptly in small lots, delivered in any part of the city, and also by carload on cars.

Stone. Stone. Stone.

Estimates given on any kind of stone-work on application.

We also do grading, and take all kinds of railroad contracts.

LIDDELL & JOHNSON

Telephone 287.

12 Loyd St., Atlanta, Ga.

If Not

In the full enjoyment of health, if you are suffering with weak back, pain in the side, catarrh of the bladder, brick dust deposit, cystitis, suppression of urine, irritation of the neck of the bladder, high colored, burning urine, or any trouble peculiar to the kidneys, bladder or other portions of the urinary tract,

Why Not

Beloved? Why permit your troubles to run on until your health is so impaired that life is rendered miserable, when you can be relieved by using

Stuart's Gin and Buchu

It is a remedy of recognized merit, and will bring happiness and health if taken in the right manner for the right diseases: viz: Kidney, Bladder and all other urinary troubles.

Sold by all druggists.

n.m

REAL ESTATE BARGAINS!

W. A. WEBSTER & CO.

17 1-2 PEACHTREE STREET,

LOTS! LOTS! LOTS!

50x100 on Bass " " " $ 450

50x100 on Terry " " " 660

50x140 on Georgia ave. " " " 1,200

50x120 on Franklin " " " 1,000

45x120 on Pine " " " 1,000

102x120 on Fort " " " 2,000

60x120 on Richardson " " " 1,200

50x120 on Franklin " " " 1,200

42x100 on Hayes " " " 1,000

50x178 on Hilliard " " " 1,500

20x135 on Means " " " 700

20x135 on Franklin " " " 700

50x150 on Cooper " " " 2,500

50x150 on Forest ave. " " " 1,000

50x150 on Forest ave. " " " 1,000

70x150 on Richardson " " " 600

HOUSES! HOUSES!

5 room house on Georgia avenue " " $ 1,350

5 room house on Franklin " " 2,400

4 room house on Hilliard " " 1,200

4 room house on Connally " " 1,200

4 room house on Howell " " 1,200

4 room house on Franklin " " 1,200

4 room house on McDaniel " " 2,000

4 room house on Whitehill " " 5,500

4 room house on Fair " " 1,800

4 room house on Franklin " " 6,000

4 room house on Randolph " " 2,600

4 room house on Franklin " " 2,350

4 room house on Franklin " " 2,350